Starting With The Good

First off, a thousand apologies for being late with this edition. Sometimes there's not enough hours in a day, week or weekend to get all done that needs doing. I don't like leaving you hanging, but sometimes, I fail. hangs head contritely

A couple of you have gone to the GoFundMe Page to support Robin's Dream of a safe shelter for women and children seeking escape from abuse and violence. It may not be a lot at this time, and still far short of the goal, but you have no idea how wonderful it feels to me and I'm sure to others, when we see another person has stepped up to give what they can.

Typically, these small donations mean the world to me personally. I cannot speak for the others, but I'm sure they feel about the same, because it means that people who have very little themselves are sacrificing to help others. That is typically how it works in this world. Those among us who need the help as much as anyone else, will reach into their reserves or sacrifice a necessity for themselves, to help those whom they feel need it as much or more than they do. It is the best and truest aspect of Humanity. I thank you.

The other heart-warming donation I can share with you is that a truckload, literally, a truck piled high with toys, showed up as a donation! The toys were in great condition and very clean and to the children who show up with nothing, this will lift their spirits higher than anything they've known before.

The sincere generosity of people in the community and of people who only read about it, warms my heart and renews my own spirit to continue what I do, as my small part in all of this. I can only imagine how much more uplifting it is to those who are there, in the trenches, personally risking so much in this endeavor!

As soon as I hear that the 501(c)3 designation is completed, I will let you know. That will make your donations tax deductible and I will ask that you come together to petition the businesses in your area, to make a contribution that will make Robin's Dream come true.

When Laws Are Applied, They Work

We have laws against raping children. Children, by definition, cannot consent to any sex, period. A man in Great Falls, Montana has been sentenced to 40 years for raping a 13-yr old. The court views the rape of a child as one of the ugliest of crimes against our society. I concur.

Of course the response from the abuser is that he'd done no harm, even that he was 'doing her a favor'. That's how they think. That's how Tim Purdon thinks. When he was USAG of ND, he refused to investigate hundreds of reports of child rape that were coming in each month from Spirit Lake Reservation. He made the comment that "there are always two sides..." in the case of a child who was raped by her mother's boyfriend on her 13th Birthday. Not to say nothing was done because there was action: The mother was charged with neglect for going to work and leaving her daughter in the care of her boyfriend, and the girl was hauled off to a juvenile institution for having bothered to report it. Nothing was done to the rapist.

Well, BIA Special Agent Bentley GreyBear did ask the rapist if he did it and the guy said yes but that the victim wanted it, so GreyBear shrugged his shoulders and moved on. GreyBear himself is a notorious rapist, as are his brothers, but hey, a badge is a badge, right?

Reports of a young girl whose mother left her in the company of a registered sex offender who raped her daily, were never investigated. Still haven't been and it's been over two years. She was told in November of that year, that she'd have to wait to file her complaint until January, after all the holidays and stuff. Meanwhile, her rapist still has her.

Don't worry about Tim Purdon, he went on to work for a very prestigious law firm that specializes in defending Native American Defendants.

See? Off the rez, 40 years. On the rez? Nothing.

Almost as appalling is a case in Big Timber, Montana where an assistant coach was having sex with a 15-yr old girl. He had more "political standing" in the community so his rape of a child is seen as (wink, wink) 'she asked for it'. They don't state that in the article but look at the sentence: "6-year Deferred Sentence". No jail time. And, if he's not caught raping another child during that time, his crime can be expunged from his record. That would leave him free to work with kids in your local high school, or elementary school--- or anywhere that children are under his supervision and control.

More and more, predatory men are viewed as their victim's victim. That men somehow don't have and are not required to have, any self control when it comes to that 'primal urge' to rape. What does this say about MEN in general? Every man I know finds this offensive.

We are, by these lack sentencing and even greater lack of enforcement of the laws, sending a very clear message to predators that we "understand" their "needs" and to the victims that they have no value to our society.

We have not only seen this at the local levels of policing and justice, but at the highest levels.

We have ongoing at this time, non-stop abuse and harassment of Thomas Sullivan by his superiors at ACF, for his 'crime' of reporting sexual abuse, child rape, child trafficking' on Spirit Lake Nation Reservation in North Dakota.

We have seen the FBI, the BIA and HHS, all join in to silence him from making those reports, despite it being a crime to interfere with a Federal Investigation, and to forbid him to even speak to Members of Congress or any Investigators, or to cooperate with any investigation.

The agencies have their priorities skewed to protect predators because that is where the Political Power resides in the USA.

The ACF has been dysfunctional and predatory for decades and it garners a budget of over $84BILLION of our tax dollars, with no one really knowing where that money goes, how it is used. Clearly, it is not being used properly, or the reports would be supported and investigated rather than shut down.

And the American Public remains oblivious to all of this because no one ever looks at all the dots that preceded any crisis that bubbles up, related to how the ACF mismanages and how it encourages abuse.

Thousands of children dying at the hands of their abusers while their files are being closed by agencies across the land following the ACF endorsed policies of getting a note from the abusers to promise not to abuse again. Each time a child is tortured to death, a new file is opened, as if there were no reports preceding it. That is intentionally designed to prevent changes in a system that is rife with corruption.

Dead children don't vote. Most of their families are powerless to protect them. Mandated Reporters are ignored or harassed into silence.

Everyone looks shocked and surprised, stunned and appalled when another horrific tale of "slipping through the cracks" surfaces. No one looks at the foundation, which has no planks left in it, intentionally designed to fail.

And then we hear about tens of thousands of children handed over to predators, slavers and worse just in Florida alone, and who have 'disappeared' with no way to track them because basic foundational procedures were 'bypassed'. They were bypassed strictly to expedite the wealthy, powerful, politically connected child traffickers getting as much 'product' as possible, as quickly as possible --- BECAUSE THAT IS HOW THE ACF WANTS IT.

If they didn't want that, they would have fixed it long ago. They would have fixed it by investigating the 13 Mandated reports that should have set off alarm bells throughout the agency and all the affiliated agencies, but they chose to silence the alarms with vicious smears, attacks, and illegal policies to insure they are not bothered as they feast among the predators, tossing the bones of a hundred thousand children into the 'cracks' of the system that they so carefully designed.

It took decades of reporting abuses by the Catholic Churches before people became aware that the institution itself was evil and that it was the Popes themselves, protecting their most vicious and prolific predators.

No one wanted to believe that something as 'holy' as the Church would do such evil. But they did. And they still do, and it has created a war within the organization itself, of Good v Evil.

How long will it take for people to really see how Evil and Predatory is the ACF and their webwork of conspirators that roll in half a trillion dollars of our tax money, and have all the power they need to silence Mandated Reporters, without fear of any consequences or investigations?

And since other reservations, with equal or less rapes being reported have managed to get more investigations, what is it about Spirit Lake Nation in particular that has so many in the FBI, HHS, IHS, ACF, BIA using all their political power to protect the most vile of predators?

We won't know until there is an investigation of all those agencies in connection with the silencing of Mandated Reporters such as Thomas Sullivan, but also the Social Workers, Doctors, Teachers, and other Mandated Reporters who have even less political power than the predators that they report. Those tactics to silence Thomas Sullivan and anyone else who tries to get the laws enforced has sent a chill throughout the region. They have seen the costs and they cannot afford to do the right thing.

Their nightmare goes on. The children's nightmares and horrors go on.

What pisses me off more than anything is that enforcing the laws would end so much damage to our society, and with it, so much corruption that drains our economy.

It took a long time for the Catholic Church to have the Spotlight turned on it. How much longer before that light shines on the ACF and the rest of our government? Or do we just 'accept' it the way Catholics did, for more decades. Shall we just pray?

Or do we do our part?

It's not just happening on the rez. It's not just happening to refugee children. It's happening everywhere because no one is holding the ACF or the other agencies accountable in any meaningful way. Check out Hartford, Connecticut's latest example.

Shine the light on the rez and you see the nexus of all that is corrupt in our country, and you see more clearly who is Evil and who is Good. It's up to us to pick a side. The sidelines only result in more Human Wreckage washing up on our streets.
